Time Warner Cable, Athens A.M. Rotary Supporting Adult Literacy in Athens County

Time Warner Cable, Inc., and the Athens A.M. Rotary Club both made donations recently to help promote adult literacy in Athens County.

Time Warner Cable, Inc., donated $500 to the Adult Basic Literacy Education (ABLE) program at The Work Station. Time Warner is committed to promoting adult education in Athens County and has donated to the ABLE program for the last seven years.

The Athens A.M. Rotary Club donated $200 to the ABLE program. The Rotary Club members voted during a January meeting to donate these funds in order to help Athens County residents pay to take the GED test. It currently costs Ohio residents $40 to take the GED test. These funds, combined with other federal funds, allow Athens County residents to take the test at no cost to themselves.

The ABLE program at The Work Station helps area residents find funding to pay for the GED tests, and donations such as these are very important in helping area residents earn their GEDs.

The ABLE program at The Work Station provides adult literacy education courses throughout the year, and helps around 70 area residents earn their GEDs each year. The Work Station also has programs to assist high school and GED graduates further their education. For more information on the ABLE program, call The Work Station at 797-1405.
